YOUTH'S DEATH BLAMED ON POISON LIQUOR

Organs of Magnetic Springs School Student Examined by State Chemist.

2 RICHWOOD MEN HELD

Face Liquor Charges as Result of Probe by Prosecuting Attorney.

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, O., July 8.—Internal organs of Charles M. Sullivan, 19-year-old Magnetic Springs High school student, are being examined today by a state chemist for traces of poison liquor following his death Monday night.

As a result of a two-day illness which brought the youth's death, two Richwood men are facing liquor charges.

John Eaches of Richwood was bound over to the grand jury under $5,000 bond by Justice Kinkaid on charges with furnishing intoxicating liquor to a minor. The affidavit for his arrest was signed by Arthur and Hugh Sullivan of Magnetic Springs, relatives of the dead boy.

Charles Miller, farmer of near Richwood, is free under bond following his arrest yesterday by the Union county sheriff on a technical charge of selling intoxicating liquor.

Prosecuting Attorney Gwynn Sanders ordered Coroner James M. Foster to conduct an examination into the death of young Sullivan when it was reported that his illness resulted from drinking liquor.

The prosecutor charged Miller with selling liquor to Eaches, who in turn is alleged to have given some of it to Sullivan. In case the examination of the youth's vital organs reveals any trace of poison liquor, Sanders said Miller would be charged with manslaughter.

Coroner Foster said the condition of the boy's body indicated excessive alcoholism.

Sullivan died in Jane M. Case hospital at Delaware Monday night, two days after being stricken. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sullivan of Magnetic Springs.

NATIONS ARRANGING WAR DEBT SESSIONS

MacDonald's Invitation for Moratorium Conference Meets with Favor.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 8.—In line with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's invitation for a conference of the powers concerned in the Hoover moratorium, the foreign office was at work today on plans for such a meeting here next week. No definite acceptances have been received, but they are expected before night.

The United States, Germany, France, Italy and probably other countries will be represented and it is taken for granted that Colonel Henry L. Stimson, the American secretary of state, who now is in Italy, will come to London if his presence is considered necessary.

Great Britain wants the meeting to begin on Monday, but if France wants a delay until after Bastille day on July 14, that will be agreeable to Downing street and the conferees might get together on Friday of next week.

Details of the conference have not been completed but it is likely that during the first stages financial experts would work alone, maintaining contact with the ministers or ambassadors of the countries they represent. During the second phase political representatives would hold plenary sessions.

Bus Co. Asks for Route Extension

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 8—The Marion-Lima Transit Co., today filed a formal application with the public utilities commission for permission to extend the Lima-Marion bus line from Norton to Columbus. The petition recited that in the event the application were granted the company would place five new 24-passenger busses into service on the line. Three of these, it was said, would replace three 15-passenger busses now in use.

FIRST ELKS' RULER DIES IN COLUMBUS

Charles Lederman, Former Local Business Man, Lodgeman Claimed.

CHARLES LEDERMAN

Charles Lederman, one of the founders of the Elks lodge here and the first exalted ruler of the lodge, died in Radium hospital in Columbus today at 3 a. m. after a sudden illness.

He was taken to the hospital July 4 where complications resulted in death. He was more than 80 years old.

His friends in Columbus said Lederman had not been in very good health for some time, but had not felt the need of medical attention until last Saturday. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Lederman came to Marion from Germany when a young man, and established a tobacco manufacturing, wholesaling and retailing concern on the property now occupied by the Pilgrim Inn on north Main street. After acquiring a small estate, he sold out his interests to his cousin, Morris Lederman, who still maintains a small tobacco shop on south Main street.

For the last 20 years Lederman has been in Columbus, where he again manufactured tobacco products. The last several years he has not been active in business, but has lived at 140 west Main street, looking after his interests. He owns some property in Columbus and is also owner of the Pilgrim Inn building here.

Lederman was never married. His only known relative in this country is his cousin, Morris of Marion. His friends here say he has four nephews in Germany.

Older residents of the city recall that Lederman was an active citizen here half a century ago. He fostered the Elks movement and was largely responsible for the organization of the local lodge in 1885, the thirty second Elks lodge in the United States. He was a life member of the lodge.

AIR TOUR FLIER IN OHIO WRECK

Crashes into Hill at Yorkville in Attempted Take-Off for Columbus.

CONDITION IS SERIOUS

Takes Half Hour To Extricate Injured Man from Wreckage.

By The Associated Press

YORKVILLE, O., July 8.—Charles Sugg, contestant in the national reliability air tour, was seriously injured today in the crash of his ship against a hill bordering on the airport here, overnight stop of the air tourists.

The pilot was buried in the wreckage of his ship. When he was extricated and taken to a hospital at Martins Ferry, it was learned he suffered a probable fracture of the skull, and internal injuries.

Sugg was flying a Buhl pup, one of the smallest ships participating in the tour, as a representative of the Buhl Aircraft corporation of Detroit. Twelve of the planes in the tour got away in the group with which he was flying. The remainder remained here until noon.

Another member of the air touring group was eliminated today, Z. D. Granville of Springfield, Mass., a time checker with the tour, being taken to a Wheeling, W. Va., hospital for an operation for acute appendicitis.

The fliers came here yesterday from Pittsburgh. Yorkville is across the Ohio river from Wheeling.

Sugg was one of the first group of air tourists to begin today's flight to Columbus. It has been customary for fliers leaving Yorkville for the west to first swing south to attain altitude before crossing the hill. Sugg however, swung directly westward. It was believed he either misjudged his distance or that his plane had not gained sufficient altitude to clear the elevation. So badly was his ship wrecked that it was a half hour before he could be freed.

Walter Henderson arrived here ahead of his colleagues for the overnight stop. The flight was from Pittsburgh. Harry L. Russell, tour leader and last year's winner of the Ford trophy, landed second. The remainder of the squadron landed soon after the leaders, settling gracefully to the field and taxiing into a line of 30 planes which compose the tour.

The fliers will remain in Columbus for luncheon, served by the aeronautical division of the Chamber of Commerce there. They will take off during the afternoon for Huntington, W. Va., to spend the night leaving there Thursday for Knoxville, Tenn.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 8.—A dozen airplanes, participating in the national tour, hopped off from Port Columbus for Huntington, W. Va., this afternoon. The first of the contestants took the air a few minutes before 2 p. m., and the last cleared at 2:09. They will stop overnight in the West Virginia city.

HITS FEDERAL COURT POLICY

Wickersham Commission Criticizes Placing of Juveniles with Hardened Criminals.

ASKS STATE SUPERVISION

Government Courts Not Equipped To Handle Delinquent Cases, Board Says.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Criticism of the federal government for allegedly dealing with its youthful law breakers on the same basis as older and hardened criminals was launched today through the White House by the now-disbanded Wickersham commission.

A formal report on "child offenders in the federal system of justice" asserted the government lacked proper equipment to mete out this type of justice and recommended the treatment of juvenile delinquency be relegated almost entirely to the states.

No explanation was given at the White House for an apparent switch in the commission's line-up, whereby this report was published ahead of a study of the deportation of aliens from the United States. The document released today was the fifth published by the commission, but was numbered as its sixth report. That upon the deportation of aliens was to be numbered five.

Objects to Report

Prior to the technical dissolution of the commission July 1, members said a lengthy letter objecting to parts of their reports on deportation had been received from Secretary Doak, who is charged with this duty. They declined to say whether the secretary of labor's letter would be made public.

After a flat declaration that the concept of juvenile delinquency is "unknown to the federal penal code," the commission estimated that 2,243 boys and girls under 18 years of age were held in jail for violating various federal laws during the six months ending Dec. 31, 1930.

Although the offenses charged ranged from violations of the Mann act, the prhibition act, the motor theft laws and the anti-narcotic act, the report asserted they "were in no way more serious than the average run of juvenile cases."

Majority Only Delinquent

"The great majority of juvenile offenders against the federal laws

Cleveland Man Held in Rubin Murder Case

By The Associated Press

CHARDON, O., July 8—John Farah of Cleveland was to be arraigned here today on a charge of first degree murder in the slaying yesterday on the road near Parkman of Larry (Akron) Rubin, one of 65 named by Cleveland police as public enemies.

As arraignment was scheduled Cleveland police advanced several theories as to the motive of the crime. One was that Rubin was slain when he attempted to hijack a load of liquor being driven to Warren by Farah's brother Mike. Another was that John Farah owed Rubin money and was shot in an attempt to collect it as the liquor was delivered.

CIGARET TAX FIGHT OPENED BEFORE WHITE

Protest Made by Official of Tobacco Forces in Effort To Get Veto.

WILL FIGHT AT POLLS

Industry To Organize for Election of Fair Officials, Speaker Predicts.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 8.—A protest against the cigaret tax bill, recently enacted by the Ohio general assembly, was laid before Governor George White today by William S. Schwartz of Cincinnati, secretary of the Ohio Tobacco Jobbers' association, who said he represented 200 jobbers and 40,000 retailers. The bill is now before the governor for his action and its opponents are asking him to veto it.

Schwartz said the tobacco dealers intended to organize and take an active part in political campaigns to protect their industry.

"The tobacco industry is one of the major industries of the state," read a statement presented by Schwartz. "It involves about $100,000,000 a year. In order to protect this business the proposed plan calls for organization of local associations in large cities which will have as members all cigaret dealers.

Forecasts Strength at Polls

"Considering that in the larger cities these groups will consist of probably 3,000 or 4,000 dealers who contact daily with a great number of customers, and that this group will constitute a real and effective political machine there is no question but that the association will exert a definite influence on the voters.

"One of the objects of the association will be to support or oppose candidates for the legislature. It is thought that in this way the tobacco industry through its organization will wield enough power to be able to safeguard its business from iniquities and obnoxious legislation. It will wield a big stick on legislators who are prone to be influenced by highly paid and active lobbyists."

Accuses Lobby

Schwartz claimed the "utilities lobby" forced the cigaret tax bill through and that some state representatives opposed to the tax, were "ordered to vote for the bill regardless."

John D. Passes 92nd Milestone in Quiet Manner

By The Associated Press

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., July 8.—Within the walls of his vast Pocantico Hills estate which oil millions built, John D. Rockefeller today observed his ninety-second birthday in excellent health.

The usual band music, fireworks and distribution of dimes were lacking for "Neighbor John's" birthday program. Messages of congratulations poured in from the world's leaders in business, finance and philanthropy, but the actual celebration was a family affair.

J. D. Rockefeller

In a birthday message to the world, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"These occasions offer me a very welcome opportunity; first to express my gratitude to the many, many friends who not only at this time, but throughout the year have shown their kindly regard to me, and, second, to wish them and theirs and all the world a large measure of health and contentment, which are the basis of real happiness."

The program mapped out for Mr. Rockefeller included his bit of golf, a little work with his secretary, a motor ride in the estate and a dinner in the evening. Only members of the immediate family were invited to the dinner. A birthday cake was baked.

OIL STOVE EXPLODES; FIRE DESTROYS HOUSE

Blaze at Beech Causes $2,000 Loss; No One Is Injured by Blast.

Special to The Star

BEECH, July 8—Explosion of a kerosene stove in a summer kitchen yesterday caused a fire which destroyed the seven-room house occupied by G. W. Sergent. The loss was estimated at $2,000 and is covered by insurance.

No members of the Sergent family were in the summer kitchen when the explosion occurred. Mrs. Sergent, who was in an adjoining room, heard the blast and discovered the kitchen in flames.

Furniture in all the rooms with the exception of the kitchen was saved by neighbors. Efforts to save the house from destruction were futile as the flames rapidly ate their way into the dry timbers.

The house was owned by W. O. Miller.

GALION MAN'S BODY TAKEN FROM CHASM

Robert K. Zinn Slides 3,000 Feet to Death on Mountain Ice Wall.

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, Wash., July 8.—Mountain guides prepared to make a dangerous trek down Mount Rainier today with the body of Robert K. Zinn, Oregon State college athlete and former resident of Galion, O., who fell to his death Sunday while attempting to climb to the summit.

The body was found yesterday by four searchers in a deep crevasse at the 12,700 foot level. Because of danger from melting ice and avalanches during the daylight, activities of searchers have been restricted to the hours of midnight to 7 a. m.

One member of the searching party was lowered into the crevasse to bring out the body. The searchers were so exhausted and weakened from their hunt that they had to leave the body in an ice field and return for additional help.

Six additional guides were summoned to aid the original four in bringing the body out. It was learned that young Zinn had not fallen off the Nisqually ice wall, with its 1,500 foot drop. His body was found on a shelf 75 feet from the wall, after it had slid about 3,000 feet down the glacier.

Young Zinn was graduated from a Galion, O., High school in 1929. His father, Rev. C. F. Zinn, was formerly pastor of the First Reformed church at Galion.

HOME FOLK APPLAUD CIRCUS PERFORMER

Marion Girl Back After Four Years with Big Top.

When the Sells Floto circus pulled into town yesterday morning, it brought with it a Marion girl, and when it left in the wee early hours this morning, she was sleeping in one of the performer's coaches.

The girl is Miss Helen Lowe, daughter of A. L. Lowe of 450 west Center street.

Four years ago she succumbed to the lure of the circus and went with Hagenbeck-Wallace for two years. For the last two years she has been with Sells Floto and was here with the circus two years ago.

Miss Lowe rides one of the trick horses in the show, and is in the grand entrance parade. Her father, a railroader, was not in the city last night and did not get to see her in the circus performances.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Despite dense fog which brought the flying ceiling within 300 feet of the ground the world fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, their wives and their financial backer, F. C. Hall, prepared today to start back home by air.

Driving to the municipal airport in Brooklyn this forenoon the fliers received an unfavorable weather report but showed little concern.

Talking It Over

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., July 8—Now I can't be so truthful about these congressmen in Washington, for Monday the head one of all of 'em drove out with Congressman Crail to my igloo to see me. Tilson, the Republican majority leader (who will perhaps be the next speaker).

We talked over old times when we used to meet and tell jokes in Longworth's room. Tilson was called in to consult on Mr. Hoover's debt plan. It was well thought out and no politics involved as he fed quite a few Democrats during the huddle.

Tilson says, "We are over the worst." Let's hope he is right. Even a congressman can be right occasionally. Yours,

Texas Airmen Plan Two Refueling Contacts Along Route to Japan.

FLYING REBUILT CRAFT

Expected To Consume Approximately 55 Hours Time Enroute.

BULLETIN

By the Associated Press

VANDERHOOF, B. C., July 8.—The transpacific plane Fort Worth passed here at 9:35 a. m. (Pacific Standard time) flying high and to the northwest. Vanderhoof is about 55 miles north of Prince George.

• • •

SEATTLE, Wash., July 8.—A projected 5,100 mile non-stop refueling flight from Seattle to Tokyo got under way at 3:07 a. m. Pacific Standard Time today when Reg L. Robbins and H. S. Jones, Texas airmen, hopped off in quest of a $25,000 prize offered by a Japanese newspaper, for the first non-stop flight between Seattle and Tokyo.

By refueling from their trimotored mother plane over Fairbanks, Alaska and again over St. Lorus, immediately after crossing the Bering sea, Robbins and Jones expected to reach Tokyo by Friday morning Pacific time, or about 55 hours after their take off.

The plane headed directly northward for an inland course over British Columbia and Yukon territory on the way to Fairbanks. The refueling plane waited at the latter place. Manned by J. J. Mattern and Zack Grechet, also of Texas, the trimotored craft will fill the tanks of the Fort Worth and then follow it across Alaska to Solomon. There the mother craft will pick up gasoline and strike out toward Siberia to make the last scheduled refueling.

Two courses have been routed on the Siberian side. If the fliers find favorable weather they will skirt the coast of Kamchatka peninsula and then fly over the Kurile islands to Japan. Otherwise they plan to journey around the gulf of Anadir and then fly down the coast, but keeping inland about 100 miles.

Have Quick Breakfast

Robbins and Jones had a quick breakfast with State Senator Billy Conner, governor for this state for the National Aeronautical association.

They took to the air 17 minutes after wheeling their plane from the hangar.

The plane ran the full length of the field and rose very slowly. They made one attempt to leave the field at 2,000 feet and bounced down from about two feet.

Robbins, at the controls, gave the plane the gun at the end of the field on the second attempt, which might have resulted in disaster had the plane failed to rise. About 200 persons cheered lustily as the white plane shot away.

There were no clouds in the sky and Charles O. Schick, government observer, said the fliers had a visibility range of 10 miles.

Schick said there were some clouds high over Alaska and more over Siberia. He said conditions should improve in the northern region when the fliers reach there tonight or early tomorrow to be refueled.

Second Hand Plane

The Fort Worth has a 225-horse power motor that has run 1,200 hours. The plane is a Lockheed Vega that has been flown 550 hours. The fliers purchased it second hand. It has a cruising speed of about 95 miles per hour. The machine is not equipped with radio.

Jones will do the navigating and Robbins the piloting, but the navigator will take the controls occasionally to rest Robbins.

Food, water, charts, navigating instruments, blankets, life saving rubber jackets, fishing tackle and a rifle were stored in the navigator's compartment.

The aviators' food supply consisted of fried chicken and sandwiches for two days and emergency rations including beans, rice, tea, bacon and chocolate. Neither cigarets nor cigars were carried as neither man smokes.

PRISONERS IN MINOR REVOLT

Guards Quickly Break Up Threatened Strike at Mansfield Reformatory Farm.

FOOD CAUSES PROTEST

Inmates Charge Amounts Insufficient for Long Hours of Labor.

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., July 8 A revolt against work at the Grafton prison farm today was nipped quickly by guards, who returned four ring leaders in the movement to the Mansfield reformatory. The remainder of the prisoners, who are under the jurisdiction of Superintendent T. C. Jenkins, of the reformatory here, went to work quietly

Superintendent Jenkins said his deputies at the farm reported a group of prisoners hatched their plot to escape work last night They believed, he said, that they would not be put to work if they did not eat breakfast and when meal time came this morning they refused to eat The chief guard informed them they would be sent to work as usual even if they did not eat

They ate the breakfast and then went to work The guards singled out the four ring leaders and started them on their way to the reformatory here

Commenting on the trouble Jenkins said "the boys, every so often get the idea they will not work Such trouble is not unusual in an institution of this sort They think they are made to work too hard but they go to work or are penalized"

About 45 of the 135 prisoners now at the farm left the breakfast table yesterday morning in protest against the quality of the food All went to work as usual, however, when B C Blumenschake threatened to send the protesters back to Mansfield. The prisoners at Grafton are "honor prisoners" from Mansfield

The four alleged leaders rounded up in the afternoon were taken to the county jail at Elyria and were returned to Mansfield today They were Gerald Zimmerman, 19, of Lorain county, Judd Prayer, 34, of Cuyahoga and Mario Greco, 26, and Arnold Johnson, 22

They denied leading the disturbance, but said their meals were insufficient for men working from 8 30 a m to 5 p m daily. For supper they claimed they received only rice with no sugar, a slice of bread, a wiener and coffee.

"The food is too good for them" was Blumenschake's only comment

Zimmerman and Greco are scheduled to be paroled in August Blumenschake said he would ask that their paroles be revoked.

INDICTMENTS CHARGE WOMEN WITH DEATHS

Nashville, Tenn., Murders Center In Activities of Liquor Gangs.

By The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 8 - Mrs Hadley Moseley, widow of a liquor king, was under indictment today for murder of Richard Acklen, newspaper reporter and bootlegger who claimed her as his sweetheart after he killed her husband in a dispute over rum trade territory

Mrs Wes Ingram, wife of a convicted hijacker and bank robber, was charged in another first degree murder indictment with procuring "the said Mary Moseley to do and commit the murder"

The indictments were returned yesterday by the grand jury here after an investigation initiated by Acklens parents, Col and Mrs Joseph H Acklen

The indictments were based largely on testimony of Mrs Moseley's 8 year old son, Hadley, Jr., who said he saw his mother and Mrs. Ingram beat Acklen before a shot ended his life in the Moseley home on May 9, a few days before he was to go on trial on charges of murder for Moseley's slaying

Ted Vaughan and Gus Kiger who investigated Acklen's death, said he might have been killed because it was feared he would make sensational disclosures about the liquor traffic here

Mrs Moseley said she believed Acklen killed himself after she had refused to marry him. The suicide version was accepted by the police

Acklen killed Moseley last December He told police Moseley had threatened his life for cutting in on liquor trade He also said that he and Mrs Moseley were "sweethearts" are typical delinquency cases" the report said "It is only by accident that they have fallen within the federal jurisdiction

"Any state would apply to these the usual technique of juvenile delinquency treatment Yet the federal government classes them with adult criminals and moves against them with the same machinery which it uses in dealing with hardened offenders"

"The federal government is not equipped to serve as a guardian to the delinquent child," the report asserted. "Nor should it assume this task Wherever a child has broken a federal law, his local community has failed in its responsibility to furnish adequate parental guidance. This duty is local, not national

"It is desirable from every point of view that the federal government be empowered to withdraw from the prosecution of juveniles, where such withdrawal will be in the public interest, and to leave the treatment of their cases to the juvenile courts or other welfare agencies of their own states The commission recommends the passage of legislation which will have this effect"

LOS ANGELES PLANS FOR GAY FESTIVAL

Western City "Going Spanish" for 150th Anniversary Celebration.

By International News Service

LOS ANGELES, Calif "Buenos dias, senora y senoritas"

That's the popular greeting in Los Angeles these days, an "old Spanish custom" revived in preparation for La Fiesta de Los Angeles, the city's 150th birthday celebration Sept. 4 to 13.

For the whole town is going Spanish this fall, in dress, customs and manners, recalling olden days when the early pueblo was ruled and colored by Spain, and later by Mexico

Sombreros, serapes, sashes and spurs will be the common apparel of the well dressed man during the ten days of carnival and spectacle, and even calzoneros, those tight fitting, bell bottom pants hells all the way down the outside seams, in fact will be considered the height of fashion

For the women before, rebozos and mantillas will be just the thing those gay little jackets, richly embroidered scarfs and rich lace head covering with the picturesque Spanish flavor.

Mexican marimbas, Spanish barbecues, bulls and fandangos will keep the days and nights filled with music, and informal street dancing will be quite the proper thing wherever dashing don and lively senorita happen to feel in the mood

"La Paloma," the dove, is going coo coo; "La Golondrina," the swallow, is practicing a lot of new dips, preparing for these syncopated, modernized dances to the tune of old Spanish and Mexican themes

The celebration will close with a two day international air fiesta, in which 600 fliers from all parts of the world, with 350 aircraft of various types, are expected to participate

It isn't often that a western city has a chance to cut itself a 150 candlepower birthday cake, and Los Angeles plans to make the most of its opportunity in La Fiesta.

FARE CUT SEEN

25 Per Cent Reduction on Transatlantic Liners Forecast

PARIS, July 8 A reduction of 25 per cent in first class fares on transatlantic liners this winter was indicated today by shipping men attending a preliminary session here of the North Atlantic conference

Diminishing tourist travel was given as the cause, it being stated that this year's season has been the worst since the World war

Most transatlantic lines were said to be in favor of the 25 per cent cut, while the United States line was believed to favor an even more drastic reduction The only opponent to the move is the North German Lloyd line, whose fast new ships, the Bremen and the Europa have carried the majority of the season's first class passengers.

Riviera Is Facing Campaign To Reform "Beach Widows"

By United Press

PARIS British Puritans have started a violent campaign to bring decency back to the golden sands of the French Riviera, the smart beaches much favored by the fashionable cosmopolitan crowds, and send the English "beach-widows" back to their husbands, or make them sew inner linings on their diaphanous beach pajamas

The French police long ago gave up the idea of making the golden sands safe for Puritans. Two piece bathing suits gave way to one-piece apparel and now the most daring bathers are back to two-pieces again, a little silk brassiere and a short pair of skin-tight "shorts," with plenty of browned skin in between above and below the two pieces

Signing herself "A North of-England Woman," a British Puritan has written a letter to the She protests against the display of flesh and bad manners

"Hundreds of shameless English women conduct themselves daily on the beach in scandalous fashion These so called smart women from my own country bring a blush to my cheeks and to every decent English woman. They came to the Riviera because they know that they dare not behave in the same manner on any English beach, where they would be jailed if they wore such transparent beach pajamas, or such so called suits as 'brassiere' and shorts, which leaves the middle unclothed and which they pretend are decent

"To my own knowledge, many of these shameless women have left their husbands in England. I wonder what their husbands would say if they could see the degraded morality of their wives under the influence of the Riviera. Even

REPORT DEBT PLAN IS GETTING RESULTS

Business Sentiment on Upgrade Throughout World, Officials Say.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 8--The Hoover moratorium proposal was credited today by commerce department officials with having brought about an improved business sentiment throughout the world.

The department said a study of reports from several widely separated foreign countries since the war debt postponement plan was announced showed that the psychological effect on business unquestionably had been good What material effect the plan will have however, has yet to be learned.

Great Britain, Italy, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia, showed, the experts said, the greatest feeling of optimism, while conditions in Japan were more encouraging with those in the Dutch East Indies and the Philippines somewhat better Those in Asia and South America were not materially changed.

In a survey of current business the department said, domestic business declined in May, but indications were that June experienced considerable improvement. Although the May employment situation showed declines, the department described it as better than usual for that season.

OLD FORTS FACE "ECONOMY ATTACK"

WASHINGTON As in time immemorial [illegible] has [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] were [illegible] the [illegible] energy made in [illegible] the great western plains [illegible] America.

[illegible] safeguard the [illegible] civilization of another day, new army posts, old forts and [illegible] of the United States [illegible] are being turned over to the [illegible] bureau and tumbledown [illegible] years of practical [illegible] are to be abandoned in the [illegible] of economy.

No longer will once stout walls [illegible] the rapid crackle of musketry [illegible] gone will be the solidly uniformed in several generations of American army styles and [illegible] the grass on the sweeping parade grounds will be free to grow high and unscamped without interruption under the measured tread of marching legions. In short, naught but the ghosts of departed heroes of the Indian wars and tragedies of America's frontier ever pushed westward, will stalk where once the old fortresses formed a bulwark of strength to early settlers bewildered by a new land beset with bloodthirsty warriors.

One Notable Mourner

Among those most poignantly hurt by the order to abandon the western outposts, milestones in the history of America is a peasant old lady, Mrs George A Custer, widow of the dashing general who was annihilated with his men one terrible day at Little Big Horn, Montana

"Custer's Last Stand" forms a trio of words known by every American General Custer, Union officer during the Civil war, was sent into the west following Lee's surrender to supply military protection to pioneers trekking toward new and fertile lands Indian war parties were continually harassing and attacking trains of covered wagons, isolating small groups of settlers and slaughtering them and generally proving a menace to the progress of civilization While General Custer was but one of many officers dispatched to the troubled area, the Battle of the Little Big Horn gave him undying fame

Attacked by an overpowering force of Sioux and Santee Indians, led by Chief Sitting Bull, Custer and his men fought a losing fight until the general and all but a mere handful of his troopers were massacred. This bloody tragedy, occurring one fateful, blistering day in 1876 set the nation aflame and resulted in extended campaigns against the Indians and the building of more forts to withstand their attacks

It is many of these old rich-in-historical lore fortresses that are to be abandoned by the war department now that the demands of economy are much more pressing than at odds It is these self same forts which bring tears to the eyes of Mrs Custer as she sits in her Park avenue apartment in New York, surrounded by hurrying, maddening crowds instead of war-shrieking redskins, and dreams of the days that are gone.

"It does seem as if some of the old forts ought to be saved," Mrs. Custer said when interviewed recently on the fifty fifth anniversary of her brave husband's last encampment "We ought not to allow every vestige of that period to die. After all, this country has very little history, considering how big it is, and we should preserve what we have"

Sentiment Not Practical

Beautiful sentiments, but apparently impractical ones in the eyes of official Washington Still, progress and all it brings must be served Leaving the forts stand and rot away, of no value to anyone, would come pond in a sense with what might have been charged, a half century and more ago, against Americans, smug and secure in the east, had they not been determined to leap the barriers set up by a savage frontier and establish a new land of promise.

The old order changeth and with it the old forts must go.

Conference Will Discuss Coal Industry Problems

Meeting Set for Tomorrow Draws Attention to Serious Bituminous Mining Developments Since War; Use of Soft Coal Decreasing.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, July 8—The conference of bituminous coal operators set for tomorrow focuses attention on the declining importance of that industry since the war, and the increasingly difficult situation of the miners

The conference was called by Secretary of Commerce Lamont following an exchange of letters between John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine workers of America, and President Hoover. It is intended primarily to be a fact-finding meeting, possibly preliminary to a more comprehensive conference at which means would be sought to relieve the distressed industry.

Use of Coal Declines

Almost constant declines in the use of bituminous coal in recent years have been recorded by the bureau of mines, and advance estimates for 1930 indicate still further decreases. The result has been reductions in the number of mines operated, in the number of men employed, and in the number of days worked. Coal miners reared in the atmosphere of the colliery, entering the pits at an early age, and for the most part trained in no other line, generally experience acute distress in the case of prolonged strikes or layoffs Such is understood to be the case at present.

The falling off in the soft coal industry, according to the bureau of mines, is attributable in large measure to such longtime economic forces as an arrested demand due to fuel economy and to increased use of oil, gas and water power as sources of energy.

Striking effects of fuel economy are noticeable in tables prepared by the bureau, which compare the average consumption of 1919 20 with that of 1928. Marked reductions are noted in the case of railroads, steam electric power plants iron and steel plants, and the manufacture of coke. Decreases ranged from 14 6 per cent in iron and steel plants to 45 per cent in steam electric power plants

Water Power Gains

The rise of water power in generation of electricity is another notable development

Similarly, other fuels have tended to supplant coal. Graphs show a marked rate of decline in coal consumption since 1919, while oil and gas, as well as water power have risen rapidly.

Still another factor which specifically affects the miner is the increased efficiency of the individual worker due to engineering progress. In 1913 the average production per man was 3 61 short tons In 1928 it was 4 73 tons.

"Drowning Victim" Tells Story of Living Death

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, July 8— Believed drowned after five minutes at the bottom of Laurel Lake, N. J., William Dugan was alive and well today. For nine hours physicians and nurses made efforts to revive him, although his heart and pulse had stopped and his body was blue and cold.

He was wrapped in blankets lined with hot water bottles, was given frequent hypodermics and inhalators were used. Finally he sighed and opened his eyes.

"It was so comfortable just my mother calling and I had to answer her. After a great effort I opened my eyes"

He had a feeling of "oblivion —peaceful oblivion and a long sleep in which there were no dreams" before he heard his mother calling and rallied

Describing his sensations on falling from a boat and being stunned, Dugan said: "I felt myself going down and down and down. Brilliant lights danced before my eyes, flashing in varied colors. Then I hit the muddy bottom and all went black.

"I don't know another thing that happened until I had the

Method of Division

Assuming that the new law will raise $25,000,000, the state will receive $5,750,000, or 23 per cent, which is slightly less than the state now receives from auto licenses. The road maintenance and repair funds of counties and municipalities will receive $6,125,000 or 25 per cent directly in proportion to the number of automobiles in each county or municipality. It will be remembered that money in the maintenance and repair fund can not be used for any other purpose than road, highway or street maintenance and repair.

Five per cent of the total income from auto tags will be divided equally among the counties, irrespective of their motor population. This five per cent will amount to $1,232,000.

The counties further receive 47 per cent of the fund for county and township general operating expenses, an amount estimated to be $11,750,000. Of this amount, any part can be appropriated for highway work as well as for other purposes, after the county has been reimbursed by the fund for its loss in personal property tax through the abandonment of the household goods and automobile personal property tax.

Amounts of Increase

It is estimated that 30 per cent of the additional amount the counties will receive from the auto tags will be required to reimburse the county treasury for the loss in the personal property duplicate under the new law.

Cuyahoga county including Cleveland will receive the greatest margin of increase from auto tags under the new law, $2,130,158.97, according to estimates published by the Highway Topics. Vinton county is slated to get the smallest increase, amounting to $25,596.57.

Other counties in the section of Ohio of which Marion county is the center will receive increases in the following amounts, according to official estimates: Crawford, $76,523.16; Delaware, $63,653.99; Hardin, $64,180.69; Morrow, $39,337.49; Union, $50,368.65; Wyandot, $52,059.00; Allen, $148,762.94; Ashland, $67,946.83; Auglaize, $66,555.29; Champaign, $60,624.75; Franklin, $694,126.56; Hancock, $99,939.57; Huron, $78,769.84; Knox, $71,785.16; Licking, $127,612.36; Logan, $66,897.07; Madison, $51,426.43; Richland, $133,343.79; Seneca, $108,471.05; Shelby, $60,047.78.

...later in the day Governor White was to receive a delegation of those opposed to his signing the tobacco tax bill.

Opponents question validity of the provision of the bill which authorizes collection of fines ranging from $25 to $100 for violations of rules and regulations of the state tax commission.

The measure also provides for fining persons who fail to put stamps on cigarets. Objectors claim this amounts to the payment of a tax and is an improper attempt to collect taxes by criminal law.

Pointing out that half a dozen state sections, providing for fines of like tenor, are embodied in the measure, objectors charged that any tax that has to be surrounded with such drastic penalties and regulations is clearly an oppressive and unreasonable law."

Opposition from the bill of a penalty for possession of unstamped cigarets by consumers lets down the bars for bootlegging, according to those who are protesting.

PLAN IMPROVEMENTS AT CITY PLAYGROUND

American Legion Post Gives Flagpole for Y. M. C. A. Tract.

Further improvements have been made at the Willow street playground, and several are scheduled for the near future. One of the outstanding is a flagpole which was furnished by the American Legion and is displayed on a prominent part of the grounds. Also, Safety Director T. E. Sonnanstine and Service Director D. J. Harlow have arranged to have the baseball diamonds leveled and scraped and the weeds and high grass cut on the grounds. A group of the boys participating in the playground activities recently built and set up a bench which will serve various purposes.

The program at the grounds yesterday included two recreational baseball games, Dale Evan's team defeating Bumgardner's, 22 to 20, and the Rice and Keller teams being tied at two all when it was necessary to conclude the session. Other games and Indian and animal stories told by E. N. Hale, secretary of the Y, were included in the morning program.

The program at the Steam Shovel playground yesterday included games and a knot tying demonstration given by the older boys. In a recreational baseball game, the teams captained by Knickle and Primmer met, Knickle's being victorious.

The younger boys program consisted of a double-header ball game played between the Lincoln park team and the Shovel at the Shovel diamonds. The results of the first game were 9 to 0 in favor of Lincoln. Batteries were Paulus and Kobler for Lincoln, and Peach Unwapher and Forsyth for the Shovel. The second game was also won by Lincoln, the score being 18 to 4. Batteries for Lincoln were Grover and Kobler, for the Shovel, Brown, McCreery and Heisel.

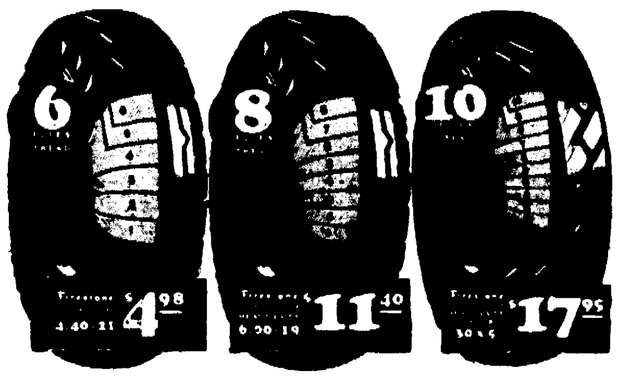
Car Owners Bought More Firestone Tires During April, May and June than in any like period in History

THERE are reasons for this—Firestone is now building the Greatest Tire Values in history, with the result that Firestone factories are operating 24 hours a day, 6 days a week, to meet public preference.



This is the year everybody is scrutinizing his purchases. This is particularly true in tire buying because of the many confusing and misleading statements made about tires.

To give car owners the facts, Firestone published comparisons showing quality, construction and prices. Then the public came in—made their own comparisons with cross-sections cut from Firestone tires—and from special brand mail order tires and others.

When they saw the facts, they bought more Firestone tires during April, May and June than in any like period in Firestone history.

Hoover Dam Employment Peak Due in Second Year

Superintendent's Office Now Flooded with Applications, Creating Surplus of Men; Maximum Needed at One Time Set at 2,500.

By International News Service

LAS VEGAS, Nev., July 8—The peak of employment on the Hoover dam job will be reached in the second year of operation, according to Leonard T. Blood, state superintendent of employment for Las Vegas.

Considering that the actual job started in September, 1930, when Secretary of the Interior Wilbur drove the spike of Nevada silver at the beginning of railroad construction between Las Vegas and Boulder City, it may be figured that the top of the upcurve will come some time within the year following next September.

Mail flooding into Blood's office near the postoffice at Las Vegas records that 15,847 persons have been anxious to secure information about employment possibilities at the dam since November 20.

Reach 250 a Week

About the date that this flood was launched with the opening of Blood's special office to take care of the situation the tide of personal applicants set in. In November registration by personal calls was about 250 a week. Last week this had dwindled down to 102.

It is being realized that in spite of the fact that the construction of the world's greatest dam in Black Canyon on the Colorado is a tremendous undertaking, the maximum number of men employed on the project at one time will not exceed 2,500.

Construction methods in the Black Canyon, or Hoover dam show, even at this stage a remarkable efficiency in operation which accounts, in part for the handling of this tremendous enterprise with a comparatively small number of men.

Tractors in Opration

Caterpillar tractors crawl into the most unbelievable places in the sun blackened rock crags about the dam site, hauling heavy machinery to remote locations where it has to function in some phase of the work.

Huge trucks roar in and out of the forbidding territory where the railroads and boulevard like highways are being driven into the dam construction area, hauling material and equipment that, not long ago, in contemplating such enterprises as this, would have been teamed in with mules.

"There is nothing approaching a shortage of men in the dam area," remarks Labor Superintendent Blood. "There is now a surplus of men between the 1,100 or 1,200 employed and the approximately 2,500 on the ground here looking for jobs. We have 3,800 actual applications on file in this office.

Limit Reached

"Any migration of job seekers into the dam territory should be stopped. Clark county, Nevada with an area of 8,042 square miles, has a normal population of about as many people. The dumping of hopeful unemployed, attracted by the fabled magnitude of the great reclamation job on the Colorado, works an untold hardship on the authorities. Neither the county nor the state can look after the people who suffer from overcrowding and unemployment."

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, July 9

GREAT activity and enterprise may be predicated on the stellar and lunar aspects that exist on this day. The far-flung and spirit of initiative and adventure into new channels and projects will be under high stimulus. However, impetuosity and rashness should be shunned and speculation not hastily embraced, as the financial prospects are under uncertain sway. Sign papers cautiously. Personal affairs may please.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of high pressure and splendid stimulus to the faculties and energies. New projects may be successfully anchored under this impulse, but with prudence calmness and proper regard to hazardous chances or speculative enterprises. Personal affairs may be lively. A child born on this day should be ingenious, resourceful, enterprising and adventurous but may be prone to take long chances. Extravagances may undermine its prospects. It should be personally popular and kindly, having many friends.

The mining country was already in severe circumstances and not a better place could have been chosen," he said.

Colonel Haubrich said that mine operators indicated to him that they were generally willing to make peace with the workers. The employers are willing to allow miners to have check-weighmen, and, in fact, many are at work, he said.

Haubrich declared he believed that few miners cared whether they were granted check-weighmen or not.

Haubrich appared to be convinced that the Red menace is not a faraway thing, but is right at home. He said he once laughed at persons who feared Communism and believed there was no cause for real worry.

"A visit into eastern Ohio has given me a different viewpoint," he asserted. He said he felt sure that the danger in some cases is acute.

Although confident that the danger will pass, Colonel Haubrich predicted that the territory will suffer before the end is reached.

Daily Proverb—"It is honorable to be accused by those who deserve to be accused."

It is to be assumed that the rains predicted by the weather people for Monday and Tuesday have been "delayed in transmission."

A visiting Frenchman finds New York City ninety per cent. wet. His percentage is so extremely conservative that about the only conclusion possible is that there must have been a mighty decoration of blue ribbonets in the metropolis the week he was there.

Not, so bad; this by Rebecca West. 'A sentence should be the shortest distance between two points." How often, in expressing ourselves, we forget it!

A substantial body of gold ore assaying as much as $6.00 to the ton is reported to have been discovered at a point sixty-three miles from Reno, Nevada. The story may be a straight one, but coming as it does from Reno, the suspicion is bound to arise that it is merely a "come-on."

The Rev. F. H. Gillingham, whoever he may be, says "When I was young I did not drink, I did not smoke, I did not go to the theater, I did not dance and I did not play cards." Wonder if he became human in time to prevent his life from becoming an utter waste."

"It only takes intelligence, courage and good will to make a prosperous world," remarks Owen D. Young. True, Owen, but the unfortunate phase of the thing is that the world has never experienced an oversupply of any of the three essentials.

The automotive division of the department of commerce in Washington reports that there were 35,805,632 automobiles in the world January 1 of the present year, 26,697,398 of them in the United States, a world gain during the calendar year of 1930 of 678,234. Just another light on the high cost of living.

Henry Ford makes this sly dig at the fellows who are inclined to set themselves up as the world's saviors. "The trouble with economists is that they read more than they think." Some of them seemingly talk more than they either think or read, judging by recent efforts on their part to bankrupt the country "to save the world."

The federal farm board is not to sell it's wheat until there is a rise in the prices offered for that grain, a matter not generally understood when announcement that it would dispose of its holdings at no time in excess of 5,000,000 bushels a month was made. With this understanding, there should be little criticism of the policy to be followed by the board.

The Pensions Bureau.

There has been no division of the federal government in more intimate contact with the American people than the pensions bureau, which passed out of existence the first of this month. Henceforth, it will be a part of the newly-created administrative unit to be known as the veterans' administration, which also will handle the affairs of the veterans' bureau and homes. The consolation is part of the administration's program of departmental rearrangement for the purpose of greater efficiency.

There are few of the older families of the nation that have not had, at some time or other, a member receiving a monthly check from the bureau of pensions, which has approximately 7,000,000 claims on file. Better to comprehend the enormity of its work, it is recalled that when these records were moved in 1926, six months were required for the task. The filing cases housing the records would stretch more than half a mile if placed side by side.

The statistics of the bureau, the records of which go back to the Revolutionary war, are provocation for sobering thought on what nations could accomplish if released from the burdens of war. The total amount paid as pensions since approaches $8,500,000,000 almost the amount of the principal of the war debts owed to the United States. In 1902 almost seven per cent. of the entire population forty-five years or older was on the pension list. In 1923, the peak year of pension payments thus far in national history, $263,000,000 were distributed. Payments last year amounted to $219,000,000. Stretching many years into the future are the pensions of Spanish-American veterans and World war veterans. The government still is paying pensions to ten widows of soldiers who fought in the war of 1812, and 553 widows of soldiers who fought in the war with Mexico, though the last survivor of that war died in 1929.

France Agrees.

France's decision to agree with the United States on the essential principle of President Hoover's war debt suspension proposal cheers the entire world. Germany, Belgium, Italy and the United States are the other principal nations concerned in the proposal. France, figuratively, is given a pat on the back for deciding to play ball. Any other decision would have made France decidedly unpopular.

The results of the one-year debt suspension can be defined only broadly, in terms of expectation. Certain things are going to happen, no one can say with certainty that they will.

First, a measure of economic relief is expected to be provided, a measure that will extend beyond the actual figures involved in the suspension, to perhaps a complete rearrangement of the international credit structure. The result, of course, will be hailed by all nations, such, at least, is the expectation.

Second, and indirectly a part of the first, is the effect on nations themselves expected to have. The world is begging for assurance that it has the pluck to overcome the depression. The debt holiday provides a part of that assurance by showing that there are leaders and nations willing to sacrifice for the good of the common cause. President Hoover states it this way:

"While the plan is particularly aimed at economic relief yet of supreme relief means the easing of human minds from fear to confidence, the easing of nations from the apprehension of disorder and governmental collapse to hope and confidence of the future."

Specifically, the suspension is expected to save Germany from the extreme of economic chaos to which that nation is being drawn by forces outside its control. The English, German and American statesmen who went over France's head to start negotiations for the suspension hope it will be successful in accomplishing this purpose above all else. They do not know. The crisis is close at hand, and may not be diverted.

The first move has been made to ease the international debt tension. In months ahead, negotiations completed up to this time will have to be ratified by the representatives of the people. The complex problems of finance involved will have to be solved. The stimulation the plan is expected to give will have to be employed to the best advantage. Statesmen and financiers will have to decide what to do when the one year suspension period is concluded. Sound thinkers in the United States will have to resist attempts to build up public sentiment favorable to cancellation of the war debts owing this nation, as a later development of debt suspension.

International debts, therefore, will occupy a prominent place in the news of the world for many months to come. They constitute the hardest problem the world has before it. Nations have chosen the wise course in attacking it openly and fearlessly.

That MacDonald Statement Again.

Several days ago reference was made in these columns to a statement by the British prime minister, as pure hokum, the statement to which reference was made having been that of the British premier that, while Great Britain was cutting her army, navy and air expenses, the United States was steadily augmenting her expenditures in developing her armaments on land, on sea and in the air. We went further than that, holding that Mr. MacDonald was playing for advantageous position at the coming conference for limitation of armaments.

Senator David A. Reed, chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, is somewhat less direct in his comment, but he makes plain that the statement of the British premier was pure hokum although he says he is certain that 'Mr. MacDonald would not consciously give out a misleading statement.'

The fact is, as established by figures set out by Senator Reed, that the United States has made heavy reductions both in strength and money expenditure in both army and navy throughout the last decade.

"In 1921," says the chairman of the senate committee in a statement given out from Washington, "our army appropriation was $491,000,000 and our army consisted of 225,746 officers and men. This was the size of our regular army after demobilization of our emergency war time forces. In the same year our navy appropriation was $443,000,000 and the navy's strength in officers and men 136,950. In 1930 our army appropriation was $331,000,000 and the total strength of our regular army had been reduced to 13,750. Today our naval appropriation has come down to $301,000,000 and the strength in officers and men has come down to 88,785."

"The American appropriations," Senator Reed goes on to say in his statement, "cover the cost of all our regular military forces, while in Great Britain neither army nor navy appropriations include the cost of the Royal air force on which Great Britain is spending $102,000,000 this year."

The Pennsylvania senator then proceeds to explain, as pointed out in these columns several days ago, that the cost of naval construction in this country is far higher than in Great Britain because of the difference in the pay of labor engaged in shipbuilding. Senator Reed states that it costs fifty per cent more to build a cruiser here than it does to build a cruiser of the same size in Britain and that the cost of destroyers and submarines is almost three times here what it is there for the same style of vessel and tonnage. The senator also calls attention to the fact that the British premier's comparisons fail to take into consideration the fact that the rate of pay in the American army and navy is sixty per cent greater than it is in the same branches of Britain's military establishment.

It doesn't matter greatly whether the statement made by Premier MacDonald to the house of commons was a conscious or an unconscious misrepresentation of the facts. It was a misrepresentation such as one who holds the exalted position of prime minister of Great Britain should not have made, either willfully or through ignorance of the facts. In fact it would be fair to the considerate of Mr. MacDonald to say that evidently

A FLAW IN THE PROCEDURE.

Editor Star: I have followed with much interest in the columns of the Marion Star, the movement to organize a hospital staff, and adopt such rules and practices, that will enable our city hospital to be recognized by the American College of Surgeons. There is a movement entirely in the right direction and should receive the commendation of all. By the adoption of the rules and regulations of the American College of Surgeons, close observance of the high ethical standard of the American College of Surgeons is promised. There can be exist personalities or politics, nor can any method of eliminating professional men in the medical world from the staff of a public institution, when it is an established fact that the men have done much to advance the cause of medicine in Marion and vicinity and have given much of their time and money in research work for the medical profession and the relief of the ailments of humanity, be approved without showing a just cause, or at least a reason for a move of this nature. When the state of Ohio grants a license to practice to a physician, he has an unlimited field, and it is what he accomplishes by diligent application to his profession and many long hours of study and research that make him outstanding in his line. Men of this type can not be ignored, neither can they be denied the privileges and fellowship of our taxpayers' hospital. When any group of individuals makes one of their fellowmen persona non grata, without showing a reason which will stand the acid test, then just that moment has jealousy and discrimination crept in, and the movement is off with a bad start, and a departure has been made from the big code of ethics. Before this movement was launched, or at least given publicity, there was maintained, in the city of Marion, by Dr. Frederick C. Smith, a hospital, a clinic with a clinical laboratory in charge of a technician of long experience, the most modern physical equipment including an X-ray machine for deep therapy work and general treatment, all of which combined with study at home and abroad, enables this physician properly to diagnose and treat disease and alleviate the multitudinous ills of man. It was a genuine of appointment when the writer learned that Dr. F. C. Smith was not named on the staff of our hospital, as years of practice, hospital and clinical experience are of real value to our hospital and can not be ignored.

Being a patient for months at Dr. Smith's clinic, I had ample time and opportunity to observe in detail, the high standard maintained there. A daily inspection, so rigid that departure from standards was impossible, the constant vigilance in caring for patients by an efficient corps of nurses, and the high standard of ethics, was worthy of favorable comment.

I feel certain that Dr. Smith would welcome any individual or group, to observe the rules and practices, the technique used in conjunction with the modern physical equipment. Also to see the enormous amount of compilations on research work, done by Dr. Smith.

This letter is not written or prompted by any selfish or personal motive, but with the hope that the citizens of Marion will know why Dr. F. C. Smith or any other physician who has a reputation for maintaining high ideals and who is striving to keep down the evil of commercialism of the world today, will be barred from an institution, established and maintained by taxpayers' money. The citizens of Marion feel that only the highest ideals should enter into the affairs and the selection of the staff of the institution for the relief of humanity, our City hospital.

DAWN IN CHINA.

An irrigation system of more than forty miles of main canal and 150 miles of laterals and distributing arms was dedicated in China yesterday. Through it water from the Yellow river will be available for more than a quarter million acres of arid and semi-arid lands.

This great irrigation system is significant not only because its completion probably marks the end of famine in a section of China subject thereto but because it marks the dawn of a new economic era of that nation.

China has unlimited possibilities. Her natural resources are tremendous. Her people have the capacity and the industry to use them advantageously once they are shown how. Lack of capital and of transportation has been probably the most serious obstacle in the way of an industrial revolution in China.

The irrigation system just completed may easily be the beginning of such a revolution. It is likely to bring to the Chinese a realization both of the backwardness under which they are accustomed to live and work, and the possibilities the future contains.

It is not difficult to imagine the eld-

Keep Poisons Out of Reach.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Many of the fatalities reported in the newspapers are caused by strychnine poisoning. The tragedy is all the greater because these avoidable accidents usually occur among children.

Most pills and tablets taken by persons suffering with constipation contain a certain amount of strychnine. Of course the drug is present in small quantities.

When taken internally in large amounts strychnine is fatal in its effects. It is not harmful when taken in prescribed doses.

Children are often tempted by the sugar coating of the pills and their pleasant taste. That is why they must be kept away from the reach of the youngsters. In some of the reported cases, as many a fifty tablets have been consumed before the danger was recognized.

Frequently the color of the medicine is an attraction to the child. When carelessly left within reach the pills gravitate to the mouth and are swallowed.

If you use any patent medicines, please do not leave them within reach of the children. All medicines should be labeled and kept in a locked medicine cabinet. Children should be taught the dangers of drugs.

These tragedies are far too numerous. Statistics from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company show that during 1926 1927 and 1928 there were 273 deaths among children due to poisoning.

The type of poisoning was known in 241 deaths, eighty-two of which were due to strychnine. Out of eighty-two cases of strychnine poisoning, forty-six were due to the taking of cathartic tablets.

I know of no cases of constipation which have been cured by cathartic pills containing strychnine. But I do know of many cases of strychnine poisoning that never would have occurred if some careless person had not left the pills within the reach of children.

The Word of God,

Scientific Farming.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The life of the race depends upon air, water, heat, shelter and food. Agriculture is one of the world's vital industries. Considering how white farmers have reaped new wealth, scientific study down through the centuries regarding crops, soils, fertilizers, the immunity of plants and vegetation, it is amazing how well the world has got along, all things considered. It would appear as if a beneficent providence had taken care of a children and ignorant race and preserved it from destruction.

Of course it must not be forgotten that farmers did know a great deal in a traditionary way. From countless failures, one success survived. The farmer remembered that, and passed the word along to his neighbor farmer. In this way a great lore of agriculture came down the ages. But it was very crude knowledge. The farmer knew certain facts but he didn't know how the result was attained, and why the outcome was a success.

For centuries farmers rotated crops largely as a matter of common sense. Farmers for countless ages have used manures to fertilize their crops. They have used many other things which proved to be successful as fertilizing agents—ashes, leaf mold, chalk, marl. They were not used with scientific insight into the reasons for so doing. The farmers have always, until recently, accepted it blindly.

Nowadays the study of soils of agriculture as a whole, is one of the most important functions of government. A study of a pinch of soil will show us how essential it is to know all about it. A pinch of soil looks to be as dead as Queen Anne. But seen under a powerful microscope, millions of tiny living creatures reveal themselves in this pinch of soil. The surface soil of the earth, for three or four feet down, is infested with these tiny creatures known as bacteria. Further down they thin out, and if we go far enough down we come to soil which is truly dead.

Plants are dependent for life upon bacteria. They can not live without bacteria. These tiny little objects range in size from one twenty-five thousandth to one fifty-thousandth of an inch in diameter. So fast do they multiply that, according to calculation, one of them under ideal conditions might in a day become the ancestor of 280,000,000,000,000.

Bacteria are agents for disintegrating fertilizing agents and converting them into palatable plant food. This they do with manure, dead plants, nitrate and even stuff so tough as wheat straw. Scientists now know, not what plants live upon but also how they feed, and the conditions of food, moisture and warmth under which they reach their full growth.

The discovery of artificial manure for plants has had a revolutionary effect upon agriculture. Bones were found successful, since they contain phosphorus, but of course they are very slow to disintegrate. An important discovery was made by the famous German chemist, Justus von Leibig, during the last century namely that bones treated with sulphuric acid constitute an admirable plant food. An even more fruitful discovery was that of Hyatt, who found that coprolite could be used like bones for making superphosphates. Of this one manure, we are told by Bridges and Tillman in "Master Minds of Modern Science," the world now makes and uses more than 6,000,000 tons a year!—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

A Granville Patriarch.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

William Gavit is one of the interesting characters in the original settlers of Granville, whose dust reposes in that historical old place. He was born in Westerley, Rhode Island, April 1, 1795, so he was merely a boy when the War of the Revolution came on. But his father was dead, and he enlisted on a privateer. He was twice captured by the British, each time spending some time as a prisoner on the notorious prison ship, Jersey, in East river, New York.

After the close of the war, he married and settled in Granville, Massachusetts, where he was living when the Licking Land company was organized. He was present at the organization and signed an agreement to take 500 acres. He was a member of the advance corps of immigrants, arriving on the site of the proposed colony November 12, 1805.

He was present at the first official meeting of the company, held at Granville and was appointed a members of the committee divide and distribute the town lots. He was later sent as a delegate to the court at Lancaster to have Granville township organized. He was also a member of the committee appointed to cut a road leading from Granville to Worthington, presumably the line of the fine road that connects the two historical towns today.

He was the second postmaster of Granville, an office he resigned upon his election as the representative of his district in the Ohio senate. He was twice elected a member of the senate and many times to the office of justice of the peace. These responsible positions indicate him as a virile character and leader among his people.

He was an outstanding Methodist and two of his sons became preachers in that denomination. He had 12 children. He died in Delaware county, January 6, 1854, aged eighty-eight years.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 8.—The newspaper reporter's job has lost a lot of the glamour so ably immortalized by Richard Harding Davis and Lynch Williams. Time-saving inventions, as the airplane, radio and wireless, have stripped the background of much of its hair-raising tension.

Floyd Gibbons is one of the last of the vanishing daredevils of the Fourth Estate. In other days the reporter was the rolling rover, the essence of whose de boheme job is still interesting and important, but stuffily standardized in a mechanical age.

He no longer sets off on those foreign expeditions with his own ingenuity as the only asset. It is scarcely possible that an intrepid Henry M. Stanley would invade the gloomy heart of Africa and stumble upon a Livingstone with the nonchalant query, "Dr. Livingstone, I believe?"

Today Dr. Livingstone would be in communication with civilization. His danger would be insignificant. A New York reporter passed a year in a shifting Arctic wasteland here but with no torturing discomfort. Phil Payne, flying bravely into eternity was a reporter on a large and not an assignment.

The reporter looks upon the copy reader's job as a colorless nightmare. Yet more than the reporter today he is in the thick of things. Through his fingers nearly drift the problems of a world in upheaval. He is on the split second behind every catastrophe and tragedy.

The copy reader in turn looks upon the proof readers task as not a job, but an affliction. In the newspaper world they are often the two most unpopular contrasts. Yet in many ways they require more intelligence, tact and quick decision than the reporter.

Furthermore the Damocles sword hangs over their heads constantly. If a reporter fails on an assignment he can resort to excuses that seem plausible. But when proof readers or proofreaders permit glaring errors they have no alibi. They must look for another job.

Incidentally, New Yorks cross streets that reluctantly twilight's penumbra to the metropolis appear to become suddenly dignified. At the end of each is the glowing glow of a dozen sun. The sidewalks have cleared of their spectacular lollies. There is no frantic mob jangle. People walk along leisurely. Life thaws out and suddenly becomes wholly livable—is this begin to sound sentimental? Anyway, what I am getting at is that Manhattan twilights are grand.

City of Moscow.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

The international question mark today is Russia with its communistic government and its celebrated five-year plan. The brain nerve-center and the pivot of the vast empire that sprawls over half of Europe and all the way across Asia is Moscow.

The Stalin bureaucracy functions from several other capitals as well, but Moscow is the headquarters for these as they are the center for the territories surrounding them. To realize what a part Moscow plays in the five-year plan one must only consider that thirteen per cent. of all Russian industry and eight per cent. of the industrial workers are to be found there.

Truly it is an international city, this Moscow, containing within its old walls men women and children of 200 different nationalities. And they are peoples of all classes and conditions, artists and politicians, writers, sociologists and professional men.

And for this bulging population that exceeds the old living facilities to the bursting point the soviet machine is furiously working to provide decent, habitable homes, offices and shops.

Visitors will find there an absolutely new and startling architecture. The new buildings are of steel, concrete and glass. Let us take one of these buildings for an example, says the government employers building.

This is built primarily for utility and is arranged on a long horizontal line. There is a level of glass, a level of concrete. Yet there are pillars running through the structure that raise it to let a garden grow under the roof.

All of the families in the houses have their cooking done in a central kitchen and eat in a huge two-level dining-room. There is a community laundry and a playground for children on the roof.

And all over Russia such structures are being built, presenting an experiment in centralization of energy and cooperative living that is one of the most interesting in the history of the world.

Federated Clubs To Sponsor Lawn Fete To Buy Milk for Undernourished Babi

COMING to the front in response to the plea made by child welfare workers of the city for funds to buy milk for undernourished babies in Marion, the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs will give an old-fashioned ice cream and home made cake lawn fete Saturday evening on the lawns of the Schaffner-Queen home at 360 east Center street.

Mrs. Frank M Knapp, chairman of the child welfare department of the federation, has marshaled her committees and is at work today completing last minute plans to carry out the project.

"We need the cooperation of every citizen in Marion to create this fund which must be raised immediately," she said this morning. The lawn fete is a civic project and it is the desire of the federation that everyone in Marion help. The grounds will be open all evening after 6 o'clock.

Today, in Marion there are 50 or more babies without milk for food, and the condition has become serious enough to warrant immediate action on the part of the Woman's Federation to provide relief.

A band concert has been promised in conjunction with the lawn fete, to add to the "old-time" atmosphere of the party. A lemonade stand and home-made candy booth will be added attractions.

Tickets will sell for 25 cents, and the Girl Reserves under Miss Roma Bader and the Junior King's Daughters under Mrs. Dale Lawrence, will be on the streets of the city Friday and Saturday, selling tickets. Men and women have agreed to solicit buyers for the tickets and the theaters are running trailers telling about the lawn fete and its purpose.

Cakes will be donated. Already,

The Fatal Canteen

...an insane laugh, Bruce de... ...lifted the canteen to his lips. ...tried to shout but no sound issued. He could not move. He knew that Bruce saw him and wondered why he showed no surprise. As Bruce lifted the canteen he saw the other man bring his gun up into position. Suddenly whatever it was that held him let go, and with no conscious muscular effort he threw himself upon the man who was about to kill. The roar of the gun was in his ears even as the fury of his attack bore the one who had fired it to the ground. The gun itself fell several feet away. Bruce twisted half around, the canteen fell from his hand, and the bank clerk went down in a writhing heap.

While the two men who knew not that they were father and son were locked in a desperate struggle, Bruce Carey died. And the canteen emptied its precious contents into the desert sand.

The good villagers of Orchard Hill, had they witnessed that combat, would have said that this young man who fought his desperate antagonist with such unfaltering courage was a new Pierre Donovan. Orchard Hill had known a gentle, imaginative lad who was dubbed "mamma's boy," and "sissy." They had known a soda fountain clerk who amused them and who, as a would-be actor, was the joke of the community. But Orchard Hill never dreamed that a Pierre Donovan, whom they did not know was merely acting these parts much as he dreamed of acting on the stage. In short, Orchard Hill had mistaken the character presented by the actor for the character of the actor himself.

But this was not a new Pierre Donovan—it was the same Pierre that his mother, Harriet Noel, and old Antonio Latour knew — acting a different role which he had suddenly been called upon to play.

And Pierre, himself, was conscious of this sudden change in characters. He had not thought highly of that soda jerk who was so afraid in the desert; he had not enjoyed the part. And in that moment when he looked upon the scene enacted by Bruce, and that other man, and felt the impending tragedy, he had known that he must play another part. The frightened soda jerk was left, as it were, to perish miserably in the desert, but Pierre Donovan, Harriet Noel's son, lived. And he had thrown himself into this new role with all the genius and greatness of his artist soul that Tony says he inherited from his actress mother.

This character which Pierre now played had no sense of fear. In a cold fury, with a strength which was more than merely physical, and with his brain working calmly as if he were rehearsing a part, he fought to gain the mastery of this one who sought his life. More than once he felt himself perilously near defeat, but the clean bodily strength of the younger man began to tell. Pierre saw fear come into the eyes of his nearly exhausted opponent. Then the end.

For a moment Pierre stood over the man who lay unconscious at his feet. Then he ran to Bruce.

Kneeling beside the body, he tried desperately to discover some sign of life. When he could not he still knelt as if he too had received a mortal hurt.

He raised his head and looked about wonderingly at Mother Mountain rising into the sky; at the stunted desert vegetation. He looked at the canteen lying on its side and the dark moist spot on the ground which the water had made. Then he saw something else.

The man he knew as Colorado Bill was creeping toward that gun which lay some distance away where it had fallen at the beginning of their struggle.

Pierre leaped to his feet. The other made a desperate effort, but as his fingers touched the weapon a smashing blow from Pierre stretched him again unconscious.

This time when the man regained his senses he saw Pierre sitting calmly on a rock with the gun in his hand, watching.

For a long minute they looked at each other without a word; then the man, getting to his feet, spoke: "Who are you?"

"I came to take Bruce back to Ann," said Pierre calmly. "You have killed him."

"He was going to leave me here in the desert without water," returned the other. "I shot him in self-defense."

Pierre pointed to the canteen and the dark moists pot on the ground. "You see what happened?"

"Yes," said the other, "I see."

"I was behind the rock there," said Pierre, "and I heard Bruce tell you about the bank money and the cashier. It is better that Bruce should go like this, I guess, than that he should be taken back home to prison, or to be hung for murder. You are the man who got Bruce so interested in a gold mine out here, I suppose?"

"For God's sake, who are you?"

"I'm Pierre Donovan."

"Pierre Donovan!"

"Yes," said Pierre, "I came here to find Bruce. He left Ann because he thought she was having a love affair with some one else. I did not know about this other thing. Ann doesn't know about it either. I can't take Bruce home now." He looked toward the dead man. Then he added: "But I can take you to Red Butte and turn you over to the law for this murder. And I am going to take the money back to the bank—and get Ann's father out of jail."

"So you are Pierre Donovan?"

"Yes, I am Pierre Donovan. You are Colorado Bill, I suppose?"

"Have you any water?" the man asked suddenly.

"Yes, a little. Not enough for two, but we must make it do. We must start back to Dripping Spring at once." Again he looked toward the dead man as if considering what to do.

"I only gave him what he deserved," said the other. "You heard how he was leaving his wife's father—an innocent man—to hang or go to prison for life. Besides I shot him in self-defense. If I were to try to get away with all the water and leave you to die in the desert you would kill me, wouldn't you?"

"Yes," said Pierre grimly. "If you try anything like that I shall kill you."

"Well, then, why accuse me of murder?"

"You got Bruce into this. If it hadn't been for your talk about the millions he could make in this mine if he could get hold of a little capital, Bruce would never have thought of leaving Ann or taking that bank money. You murdered Bruce Carey when you made him money-mad, and I am going to see that you hang for it. I owe it to Ann."

"You won't help Ann that way. If you turn this money back to the bank, you'll have to tell how you got it, won't you?"

"I'll have to tell them something, I suppose."

"Yes, and if you turn me over to the sheriff in Red Butte I'll tell how Bruce Carey murdered the cashier. I don't think it will make Ann any happier to know that her husband was a thief and a murderer and that he was ready to let her own father be hung in order to cover up his crimes."

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TODAY was Wednesday, and it was hot. It was even hot when me and Jubilee woke up, and when I had let him down and put on my short britches and went down it was hotter yet. It is always hotter when a fella has put on his britches, but that wasn't what made it hot. It would have been hotter anyhow. When the sun came up it was as big around as a washtub and red, and the upper it got the smaller and hotter it got.

When I came in from the barn where the bunch was waiting for me to get done feeding my face and go somewhere, my grandfather said today was going to be a sizzler. He said it was going to be hot enough to put a permanent wave in a brass monkey. He said he bet anyone could fry eggs out on the step without making a fire. My ant told him he was silly, and he said he would bet her a box of candy against a kiss that he could light his pipe out in the sun without using a match, and she said that would be one bet she would hate to lose, and my grandfather said he would lose even if he won, but if he won she could give his kiss to one of the cows, so he went outside and he filled his pipe and then he took off his spectacles and held one of the glasses between the sun and his pipe and pretty soon he was puffing smoke out like a choo-choo. He is certainly slick.

My ant offered to pay up, and got mad when he told her to save it so he would always have a kiss coming to him. I was bent over looking at some ants coming out of a hole and when my ant said she would give the kiss to Thomas Aristides I began to take notice and I straightened up just as she bent down and the back of my head hit her on the chin so hard that my grandfather asted me if I was trying to make her bite her forehead. I saw she was mad so I said I was raising up my head to get the kiss. My ant said I could go without the kiss, but Feeble told her to give it to her and she would save it for me till my face was clean. I told her she was trying to make me wear my face dirty all the rest of my life.

Then my mother brang Annabelle Lee out in the yard with almost nothing on and the girls thought she looked cute, so they said they would play with her till we got back from the pasture. We didn't get back. We went down to the lake shore and stayed in swimming and on the sand all day and had a good time. A fella can get along without girls, only the most of the time they won't let him. When I took my cows home at night they were still there, but they had been out to the back of the poorhouse and to Mud Turkle pond looking for us, and they looked like they needed a swim they were all so hot and sweaty. Younias said I ought to be ashamed to treat her that way. I told her I was sorry and would take her with me the next time I went swimming. I thought that was a good joke on her, but she acted so happy I am afraid I am in trouble again.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Avis Arlen, Intent Upon "Crashing" the Brixton House Party, Offers To Go In Mary's Stead.

NOEL'S head went up in the fashion of an animal startled by hunters as Mary advised him to "beat it" because his father and Miss Arlen were coming toward him. He had been so absorbed by his outburst of anger that he had not seen the breaking up of the other group as Mary and I had. Philip Veritzen was losing no time in "collecting the family," the intention he had voiced to Lillian and me but a few minutes earlier.

I saw Noel send a quick glance, almost desperate in its expression, at Avis Arlen coming toward him on his father's arm, her face lifted with a caressing smile to the older man's face. Then, all the anger suddenly drained out of him, he turned back to Mary.

"Please don't go, Mary," he said, and in his voice there was an agony of appeal which could not but help to soften any girl. It was the tone a man uses only to the woman he loves best, and I was mensly glad that not only Noel's father but Avis Arlen also were near enough to hear it. It must have been the crowning humiliation of Miss Arlen's evening when she had made so strenuous an effort to make us believe Noel was but a "captive chained to her chariot wheels," to have him show so plainly that he was in love only with Mary.

I think it never was given to Mary to receive more balm for wounded pride than in that moment when, ignoring the other girl as if she were not in existence, he voiced his plea to her, regardless of anyone's hearing. The light mockery left her face and she put her hand upon his sleeve.

Avis Tries Again

"I wish I could stay, Noel," she said, and her voice was a caress, "but it's too late now. I've promised and I must go, but I'll hurry back, honest, for I'll want to."

"Couldn't I go in your place?" Avis Arlen said eagerly, and I wondered if I had imagined the venomous look she had given Mary, so swiftly had it come and gone. "Of course I couldn't propose this if you wanted to go, but if you really wanted to say here, I could take your place. I don't suppose it matters to the hostess which particular girl comes up to her house party."

For a fraction of a second I was speechless at the persistence and audacity of the girl in the face of the almost insulting reproof I had given her but a few minutes before for her attempts to go uninvited to Helena Brixton's house party. Nothing less than brutality, I realized, would have any effect upon her. She had sense enough to perceive that whatever hold she had established upon Noel during their summer's association was broken, although I was sure that her vanity would not permit her to let him go without a determined effort to re-establish the attraction which I knew she had had for him in Mary's absence. But just now her heart was set upon one thing, the chance to go to the house party where she would meet Yale boys and West Pointers.

Madge Intervenes

"I'm sure it wouldn't," Noel put in. "Mary, you'll stay and let her go, won't you?"

My treacherous sympathies veered suddenly toward Noel, although I had been much annoyed at him because of Avis Arlen. But not even to give him and Mary the opportunity for reconciliation could I turn Avis Arlen loose upon the Brixton house party. If it lasted more than three days I knew that she would find herself quite forsaken, for she had no quality which would keep a boy's admiration. But for the first day or two I knew that she would antagonize every girl and upset the equilibrium of most of the boys by her crude but effective efforts to attract them. The schoolgirls who were to be the guests were too inexperienced to cope with her method of warfare and I steeled my determination that she should not accomplish her purpose.

"I'm sorry, Noel," I said quickly but firmly, "but that is impossible. Mrs. Brixton has planned her house party with special reference to Mary." I could not resist giving Noel this little thrust. He deserved it I considered for his folly in being attracted, if only temporarily, by Avis Arlen during his Summer's absence. "And I cannot permit any interference with her plans. You must go up there with Marion tomorrow morning, Mary. You know that her mother and father are quite counting upon it."

I pointed my words with a meaning glance at her, and saw that she suddenly remembered the sole condition upon which Harry Underwood had consented to Marion's joining the house party. For Mr. Underwood knew, what we had so far been able to keep from Lillian, that Charles Owen, Samuel Brixton's rascally half-brother, was planning to marry Marion for some nefarious reason of his own.

"Yes, I know." Mary's resigned voice would have befitted a martyr headed for the stake. "I must go."

"And so must we." Philip Veritzen's voice struck in. I had expected him to speak before, for he had been an interested if disapproving auditor of the colloquy. But he simply had listened silently, his eyes going from one to the other of the two girls. He did not look at all toward his son, but Noel started at his words as if he had been flicked with the end of a whiplash. He did not answer his father, however, but spoke breathlessly to me.

"Is there no other way?" he asked. "Must Mary go?"

LACK FUNDS TO FINANCE LIGHTS

Mt. Gilead Wants Company To Install New White Way System.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, July 8.—Lack of funds to finance the installation of the white way lights planned for Main and High streets may cause an abandonment of the plan.

Council is seeking an agreement with the Mt. Gilead Water, Light, Heat & Power Co. to provide the installation of the lights by the company. The company officials are reluctant to own the standards and thus assure the installation at this time. Their objections, J. D. Preston, distribution manager of the C. W. & M., said, were due to a feeling that it would be unwise from the village's standpoint as it would be necessary to make a contract for the service which would be in effect for 10 years at a high er rate than for other lighting service.

Mt. Gilead might in a few years be confronted with the same situation we now have at Marion, but even the standards there and have a contract for their operation. A shortage of funds in the city treasury makes it advisable for them to cut out a part of the lighting expense which is not as necessary to us as we cannot consent to a lessened revenue when many have a large part in the investment. For that reason we would prefer that the city own the standards and the expenditure for lighting service could then be regulated. The members here have agreed that if the lights are to be installed at this time while Main street is being repaired the only solution is to have the company make the investment. As the poles and specifications are completed, a new proposal will be submitted for consideration at the next meeting of council.

To Get Dividend

The total amount due the city, including the interest is $318,557.47 for which is deducted offsets on account of obligation of the city on notes and accrued interest in the sum of $54,529.84 which leaves the amount of $264,017.63. In addition to this amount the city holds security bonds in the sum of $87,-500.00. Adjustment of this matter will permit the city to receive the first dividend of 20 per cent which has not as yet been paid the city while those claims were pending.

J. W. Ivy presented a bill from Dr. H. H. Hoover for the amount of $15.00 for services rendered Murray for injuries which she alleged she sustained at the Fairview avenue bridge because it was not lighted during the improvement. The bill was referred to the city solicitor.

Authorization was given for the transfer of $5,500 from the electric light fund to the electric light improvement fund.

M. A. Winemiller, W. V. Osborn, and Homer Reisch were appointed an assessing board to estimate the assessment to pay the cost of the improvements of the various alleys in which sewers have been constructed.

The equalizing board for the improvement of Fairview avenue by paving submitted the final report

CARDS SHOW SIGNS OF HITTING SKIDS IN NATIONAL FLAG RACE

Cubs Take Twin Bill from Leaders; Athletics Gain on Senators.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

As the Philadelphia Athletics continue to dominate the American league race, despite the stoutest efforts of Walt Johnson's Washington Senators, baseball fans again are beginning to look to the National league to supply most of the fireworks in the second half of the campaign.

From the way things are shaping up now, they probably will not be disappointed. With the St. Louis Cardinals displaying symptoms of faltering and the Brooklyn Robins and Chicago Cubs coming up fast, prospects are the senior circuit soon will be embroiled in another sizzling battle for the top. The four leading clubs were bunched within a span of three and a half games today.

Cards Drop Two

The Cardinals lost valuable ground yesterday when they took two beatings from the Cubs at Chicago, 14 to 2, and 6 to 3. It was the third double defeat administered the leaders within as many weeks. The two victories shoved the Cubs up into third place in a virtual tie with the Brooklyn Robins, a half-game behind the Giants, who were held idle by rain at Boston.

The Brooklyn Robins came back to trim the Phillies, 5 to 1, for an even break in their series. Babe Phelps and Jack Quinn yielded eleven hits, but kept them scattered.

Hoover Sees Game

President Hoover and other notables watched the champion Athletics turn back their strongest rivals, 7 to 3, in the second game of their vital series at Washington. In squaring the series the A's staged two typical rallies in the late innings, each good for three runs. The victory put the Athletics five and a half games in front of the field.

Although they punched four home runs, the St. Louis Browns dropped a twelve-inning decision to Chicago White Sox, 10 to 8. Fred Schulte hit two home runs for the losers, while Tut Jenkins and Chad Kimsey rapped one apiece.

Rain again held the Yankees and Red Sox idle at New York. Cleveland and Detroit were not scheduled.

RESULTS YESTERDAY

Calvary 7, Lutherans 5; Epworth Bishops 4, Epworth Seniors 3; Lee Street 5, Trinity Baptist 4 (10 innings); Epworth No. 1 5, St. Mary 1.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

TWO of the four co-leaders of the No. 1 Sunday school league fell by the wayside yesterday, taking it on the chin from a pair of second division teams. As a result the first step was taken in restoring the same semblance of order in the standings of the circuit. Before yesterday there were four teams tied for first place and the other four were deadlocked for the second division posts. Today there are two teams tied for first, two for third, two for fifth and two for seventh.

Calvary, Bishops Win

Calvary Evangelical and Epworth Bishops are the two teams which survived yesterday's battles for first place. Calvary submerged the Lutherans to the tune of 7-5 while the Bishops were staggering through a raggedly-played contest to take the measure of the brother Methodists, the Seniors, by a 4-3 score.

Lee Street Presbyterians, who apparently have struck their stride after about six weeks of internal dissension, rose up yesterday and gave the rapidly skidding Trinity Baptists a mighty wallop on the chin, winning a 10-inning battle 5 to 4. John Clark directed his Epworth No. 1 team to a 5 to 1 victory over the St. Mary Irish, another team which appears to be in the throes of a mid-season slump.

What a Game!

The Epworth Bishops were lucky, plenty so, to win the game from the Seniors. Neither team played baseball worthy of the name but the Bishops looked the worst of the two at everything except getting runs. Eddie Mautz hurled a good game for the Bishops, this being the only thing that kept them in front. The Seniors played with only eight men in the lineup, another factor that doesn't add to the showing of the Bishops in the least. Bill Roush, sterling Bishop shortstop, was absent from the lineup, and with him went about three fourths of the fight usually present in the team.

Bob Gamble, Epworth No. 1 pitcher, turned in the best mound performance of the day's schedule when he set down the heavy hitting Irish club with only six hits and fanned 12 batters. That gentlemen, against the Irish, is pitching. Those boys can hit. With Gamble hurling in this form the Methodists didn't have to worry much about what the rest of the team did. John Dowler, however, managed to steal a small part of the show by banging out a four clout in the fifth inning with one mate on base. Dowler has been hitting the ball with gusto lately, his hits having been directly responsible for winning at least two ball games out of the four won by the No. 1 nine.

Too Big a Lead

Calvary's heavy hitters broke loose in the first two innings of the game with the Lutherans yesterday and piled up a total of five runs which provided enough working margin to keep the team in front all through the game. The Lutherans nicked away at the lead all through the game getting in shooting range of a tie score before the end of the game but lacked the punch to put across the needed scores.

The scorebook for the Trinity Baptist-Lee Street encounter was not turned in to the commission secretary so no detailed account of the game is available. Batteries and score by innings:

JOHNNY FLORIO TOPS QUALIFYING FIELD IN OHIO AMATEUR PLAY

32 Survivors of Medal Competition To Begin Elimination Rounds Today.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 8—Thirty-two golfers from all sections of the state settled down today to the serious business of eliminating one another from the running for the Ohio amateur golf championship at the Wyandot Golf club.

Bothered no longer by the tickish process of qualifying for the title race, the 32 started match play. Two rounds will be played today with two more Thursday at the end of which only two of that number will remain. On Friday they clash over the 36 hole route.

Of the 32 who made the qualifying grade yesterday by shooting scores of 164 or lower, for the two day test, only Jack Munro of Akron and P. V. Lee of Columbus are considered members of the old guard of Ohio golf.

Johnny Florio, of Columbus, holder of the title in 1929, established himself as a distinct favorite to regain the title by taking home medalist honors for the two preliminary rounds. Florio put in two rounds of 72 and 71 for a 143. Trailing the Ohio State star by three strokes came another Columbus player, Mike Goodman, who finished with a card of 146 due to two rounds of 73 each. Next in line came Oliver Transue of Hartville, with a score of 151.

SHEKELS ROLL IN

CHICAGO, July 8—If support will boost a team into a championship, the Cubs should be right up there at the close of the National league season.

Yesterday 50,000 fans stormed Wrigley field to see the Cubs and the champion St. Louis Cardinals play a double header, and there wasn't as much confusion during the 1929 world series as resulted from the jam.

Traffic was clogged up for hours, even after more than 45,000 had crowded into the park. More than 1,000 persons remained outside the park to watch the scoreboard and that many more obtained roosting places atop adjoining buildings. The ordinary detail of police was unable to cope with the crowd and an additional 35 men were hurried out to help.

Irish Pro Says U. S. Will Lose Davis Cup Tennis Matches.

By The Associated Press

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., July 8—Take it from Albert Patrick Burke, France again will win the Davis cup this year.

Burke, Irish pro at a French club, who is competing for the first time in the American professional tennis championship, declares the poor showing made by the French at Wimbledon should be taken as no criterion of what may be expected in the Davis cup challenge round.

Burke has it figured out that the United States will reach the challenge round and lose to France, 3 to 2. He thinks Cochet will beat both Frank Shields and Sidney B. Wood in singles and that Jean Borotra will add the deciding French triumph by beating Wood. America's two points, he thinks, will come through Shields beating Borotra and George Lott and John Van Ryn winning the doubles.

Forest Lawn Wins from Mt. Gilead Club, 11-8

Forest Lawn Sunday school of the No. 2 Sunday school league stepped out of league competition yesterday to engage the Mt. Gilead Merchants and came home with an 11 to 8 decision to its credit. Rallies in the late innings on the part of Mt. Gilead almost cots the locals the game.

Freddie Vestal and Stanley McCombs of the winners clouted home runs in the sixth inning. Benson of Mt. Gilead hit for the circuit in the seventh. "Willie" Benson of Forest Lawn has had a perfect day at bat, getting one triple, two doubles and two singles in five times up.

Batteries and score by innings: Forest Lawn ..... 001 025 021—11
Mt. Gilead ..... 000 100 340— 8
Forest Lawn, Vestal, Amick, R. Peadon and G. Peadon and Welch; Mt. Gilead, Conroy and Benson.

Bill McIlwee, two years ago a right-handed outfielder, southpawed the University of Maryland team to four wins in his five starts this season. He was a sophomore.

ANOTHER "big evening" is in prospect for members of the city recreation baseball commission when that organization meets tonight in the Y. M. C. A. for its regular meeting. The board has before it the protest tabled from the meeting two weeks ago of a game between the Silk Mills and Ohio Fuel Gas company. This protest has evoked much discussion and argument among the softball fraternity of the city and will probably evoke a lot more among the commission before it is settled.

• • •

The commission is also expected to consider plans for the raising of money to assist in the payment of expenses of three individuals who have been injured recently in playing recreation baseball. Of the three, two were injured so severely they will be out of work for several weeks and the third was off for a few days. Stewart Jones, Don Cox and Don Anderson are the three principals, the former two being the most seriously injured, one having a broken shoulder and the other a broken leg. Anderson sustained a broken nose.

• • •

The commission will make final arrangements for a benefit ball game to be played next Wednesday as part of the fund-raising program and is also expected to add approval to an offer of the Y-Indus club, a private organization, to back a benefit movie within a short time at the Marion theater. The Y-Indus club, made up largely of ball players, has offered to promote the show and turn any profits over to the commission to aid the three injured players. Managers of the city teams will be asked to aid in selling tickets for this show.

• • •

Managers of the city teams or their representatives are asked to meet at the Y. M. C. A. Friday at 8 p. m. and get tickets for this show. It is expected that each team will purchase at least as many tickets as there are ball players on the club's roster. To date most of the managers approached have indicated a willingness to cooperate in this effort to raise money. It will be a big boost for softball if they get behind this in a big way. A distinct slap if they don't.

ED WALSH TURNS IN TWO-HIT GAME AND MILLERS TRIM HENS

Young Hurler Drives in Winning Run in Ninth with Two Out.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 8—Ed Walsh, Jr., son of the Chicago White Sox spitball king of another baseball generation, has to his credit one of the best-pitched games of the American association season.

Young Ed has had trouble getting started. He remained with the White Sox for a season or so, then was shipped to Louisville. He failed to help the Colonels and was turned over to Minneapolis.

Yesterday he turned in a masterpiece.

He opposed Rosy Bill Ryan in a pitching battle and gave the Toledo Mud Hens just two hits, neither of which came after the third inning. His mates didn't seem to be getting anywhere against Ryan, so Edward took it upon himself to slam out a double in the ninth after two were out, to drive in the only run of the game. In the other game of the bill, the Millers chalked up a 5 to 3 decision.

St. Paul increased its lead over Louisville by defeating Columbus, 8 to 5, in the opening game of their series.

Nearly 10,000 customers showed up at Milwaukee to watch the Brewers and Indianapolis divide a pair of games. The first game was largely Art Shires' party, in which he drove out a homer, double and single to drive in six runs in a 12 to 6 Brewer victory.

The second game resulted in a 4 to 2 victory for the Hoosiers.

Louisville defeated Kansas City, 2 to 1, in the first game of a doubleheader but dropped the second, 8 to 4.

PITCHING WELL

DON LINDSEY

Don Lindsey, pictured above, is one of the principal reasons why the St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday school recreation baseball team is setting the pace for the No. 2 Sunday school league. Lindsey, a right handed pitcher, has been turning in some sensational work on the mound.

Last season Lindsey hurled for the same team and did only an average job of it, his team finishing in a tie for last place. This season the club is leading the league by a half game margin at this point. Lindsey, it cannot be denied, has for the most part had some excellent support but this does not in any way detract from his mound achievements.

A thoroughly likeable lad, Lindsey is a good pitcher, a hard worker, and a first class sportsman. Such a person is an asset to any ball club.

Muskogee, Okla., in the Western association made five homers in a single inning this spring, tying Waco's Texas league mark.

Eight motorcycle races will be run at Richmond, Va., as a sports feature of Memorial Day. Two will be for national honors.

WHEAT REACTS LOWER TODAY

Reported Financial Difficulties in Germany Has Bearish Influence.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 8— Wheat prices receded after averaging higher early today. Stock market weakness and rumors of financial difficulties in Germany had a bearish influence Opening 1-4 cent decline to 1-2 cent advance, wheat later showed an all around set back Corn started 1-4 off to 1-4 up and held relatively firm.

At first, the wheat market tended upward owing to absence of selling pressure, and to official reports that the Canadian crop situation remained the poorest ever known The market soon ran into selling orders, however, and price gains were more than wiped out Declines were checked as a result largely of corn market strength

Helping to give firmness to corn were advices that in parts of the southwest, Oklahoma especially, the corn crop situation was serious Reports said early corn was in the critical tasseling and silking stages and urgently in need of rain It was added that corn in the uplands had been damaged in some other sections of the south Corn receipts in Chicago were scanty, 78 cars against 162 at this time last week Oats followed corn

Provisions were firm, responsive to upturns in hog values.

Marching Forward

The electric light and power companies of the United States have done and are doing a big job, but there is a bigger one ahead; there are indications of a greater demand for service as business rights itself.

Domestic use of electric service has grown steadily and rapidly.

We must be ready for the upward turn of commercial and industrial power use as well.

Nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars of new money will be invested in the electric light and power business this year for new construction to improve and extend service. This company will do its share.

Luncheon Clubs To Use Funds for Aid of Needy

Money To Have Been Used by Kiwanians for Fresh Air Camp To Be Diverted to More Useful Channels; Rotary May Follow Example.

Feeling that Marion's underprivileged children are in greater need of material relief than of fresh air camp vacations this year in view of existing conditions the Marion Kiwanis club yesterday revamped its 1931 program of work among the city's underprivileged children.

The Marion Rotary club which has concerned itself with the welfare of Marion's crippled children and has financed a similar fresh air camp each year for these children is considering a similar course of action, Don Howard president of the club, said today. Although the club has not yet taken official action, President Howard said he is certain that funds ordinarily used for the camp will be diverted to more material relief for the crippled children this year.

The Kiwanis club has approximately $500 in its treasury for underprivileged child work this year reports given at the meeting of the board of directors yesterday showed. Instead of using this money to send 35 underprivileged children to the Y M C A camp at Hebron this year, the board decided to hold the money for more definite relief purposes.

Marion children will be the only persons to benefit from the fund officials of the club say as some of the money was raised through public benefits sponsored by the club for the express purpose of underprivileged child relief.

The $500 raised by the Kiwanis club for this work came largely from the balance in the club's treasury from the appearance of WLW radio entertainers two years ago. Of the $1,000 raised by their appearance here a balance of $450 remains. The club cleared another $100 on the presentation of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" at the Ohio theater several weeks ago and the sale of ice cream at the dedication of the Harding memorial.

In addition to this fund for underprivileged children, the club maintains another unchime fund to which each member of the club contributes weekly. The money this year was used to purchase 30 pairs of glasses for children who otherwise would have been unable to obtain optical attention.

OBITUARY

Samuel Thomas Cook born July 16, 1881 to Samuel and Catherine Neiman Cook at Scioto county. Departed this life June 30, 1931 at Marion, O at the age of 49 years, 11 months. He was united in marriage to Minnie Dress at Wellston, O, September 17 1904. To this union were born two children.

He was a devoted husband and father. His thoughts were always for others in kind words and deeds. To know him was to love him. Even in his last days of suffering when his loved ones stood over him doing all that was in their power his thoughts were of them. He bore his suffering patiently and was ready to meet Jesus face to face.

He leaves to mourn his loss his companion, two children, two grandchildren, two brothers, six sisters, host of other relatives and many friends. His parents preceded him in death. He was a member of the St Mary's Catholic church and of the Eagle lodge.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in his wisdom has recalled
The bloom his love had given,
And though the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in Heaven. •

EAGLES WILL SEND DELEGATES TO MEET

Lodge To Be Represented at State and National Conventions.

When the national and state conventions of the Fraternal Order of Eagles convene at Toledo during the week of Aug 10 Marion will be represented by five delegates to the national convention and nine to the state convention. These delegates will represent Buckeye Aerie No 337. The delegates to the national convention, John A Abel, Sherman L Perry, George Leibee, V V Bush, and Fred T Eaton are all past presidents of the Buckeye Aerie. These same delegates together with Roy Abel, Frank H Murray, Russel H Patterson, and A H Franklin will also attend the state convention.

Secretary John A Abel is preparing credentials for the delegates to the two conventions and efforts are being made to organize a marching club to represent Buckeye Aerie in the parade which will be a feature of the meet. Prizes amounting to $15,000 are to be awarded to marching clubs degree teams and bands in the parade and at ritualistic contests, Secretary Abel announced.

The state convention will discuss principally the continuation of the campaign of Ohio Eagles for the enactment of an old age pension law in the state and further plans for a state-wide membership campaign. This meeting will be presided over by State President E M Barry of Cleveland.

National President Robert E Proctor of Elkhart, Ind., will be the principal officer at the national meeting. State President Barry considers Ohio to have a good chance of electing Henry J Berning of Akron a national vice president. Berning is a state organizer of the order. President Barry points out that Ohio should be entitled to consideration as the results of the recent gain in membership until Ohio now has the largest Eagle membership of any state in the union.
